

Introduction to Repatriation: principles, policy, practice – Professional Development Course, Indicative schedule

This document contains an indicative course schedule

It is designed to give you some preliminary information about the course – it is not the final schedule.

To that end, please note:

- This schedule is indicative and may change. The final schedule will be available on the course Learning Management System available after enrolment.
- Preparatory work will include watching/listening to pre-recordings. These are being recorded at present. Details will be added to course schedule shortly, and pre-recordings will be available on the Learning Management System after enrolment
- Key Reading information available shortly, and texts available on the Learning Management System after enrolment. General reading list available below.
- Panel members and presenters for each session are being finalised now. Presenters are drawn from a large team of repatriation experts from community, research, museum and government (see bios at the end of this document)
